Back on Track puts shelter guests on job path

Program already is bringing interview and job search skills to women

In the next step in Caldwell's ministry with Elizabeth's Caldwell House, women at the shelter have started classes designed to help lead to employment - and a life beyond housing in the Price Building.

Back on Track is a five-week regimen of Monday evening classes aimed at helping women gain skills to be successful in the job market.

Each 90 minute class involves a different employment-related topic: goal setting, resume writing and interview skills, how to search for work, and how to keep the job and improve skills once employed.

The classes are among the supportive services offered by volunteers gathered through the leadership of the Salvation Army, which has held Back on Track classes for women at its Uptown location. The addition of volunteer-led classes at Caldwell recognizes requests from guests for job related skills in a class setting closer to their overnight location. Many already spend their days in a search for work and access to the Uptown classes was difficult.

Classes are held in a computer-equipped resource center which has also been known as the Angel Room on the second floor of the Price Building.

Feedback so far: 'going great'

Early feedback is that the Monday courses are "going great" according to Caldwell office manager Leslie Gipple, who helped to ready the resource room for an influx of five donated computers and a printer. A wireless router allows women to use the Internet to aid their job search. Also donated were work tables and the church purchased chairs with funds from a grant especially for Caldwell House.

The courses appear to be on target: Leslie reports at least six of the 11 women who attend courses had no experience with resumes while another four had no computer experience.

Because some of the volunteer instructors are male, Leslie says steps were taken to preserve the privacy of other women in the shelter.

Caldwell member Tracy Godfrey, who taught a resume and network building class, says the women are exploring jobs in cooking and animal care, among other jobs. Others have a sense of urgency to find work as their stay at the shelter draws to a close. "One woman told me 'my time at the shelter is just about up, I have to have something'," says Tracy.

A logical next step for Caldwell

The addition of classes is the latest of many steps to broaden Caldwell's mission with the shelter.

Pastor John Cleghorn says the church views course work as "the next step in the evolution of that ministry. We knew after shelter and supportive services that the guests were interested in job readiness."

Let's Have a Conversation About Music and Worship

Pastor's Message

Music is important at Caldwell. So many who come here say the choir is one of the main attractions. Gospel music and how it connects us with the timeless truth of the gospel is deeply embedded in the DNA and the ethos of this place.

Our Volunteer Choir Director Smitty Flynn recently told the Gospel choir that he thinks it's time for us to accelerate our thinking about the future of music at Caldwell. It was Smitty's idea to wait for a bit after Dr. Thomas Moore's departure before we moved forward. He was right. The choir has used the last few months to reconnect with each other and with the music they so marvelously contribute to worship. And the music has been a marvelous expression of praise and connection to the almighty. It's been a good time of re-centering on what music means to them and to the rest of us.

Let me be clear about one thing up front – Smitty isn't going anywhere. He is the heart and soul of our Gospel music tradition, as he has been in one way or another in God's church for twenty years. He has given and given of his time. Meanwhile Caldwell has grown and grown. In the last few months, Dan Cadle and Carl Brinson have pitched in to help at times and, thanks be to God, Manley Roberts has anchored Sunday mornings.

But Smitty, the choir, your Worship Committee, the session and I agree it's time to move forward in seeking the right person to take a compensated position leading music at Caldwell. This person would work hand in hand with Smitty in relation to the adult choir, while also taking a broader look at music ministry at Caldwell and working closely with me, Veronica and the Worship Committee to plan worship week to week and explore what broader possibilities God may have in store for us.

First, though, let's talk. The session has agreed to follow a process that begins with at least two "town hall" meetings with you – the congregation. We want to hear about what you most cherish about music at Caldwell now and what additional possibilities might interest you as complements to our gospel music tradition. Following the town halls, a search committee will be named, a job description written and a search conducted.

We all understand this role is a special one. The individual who fills it will need to embody a rare mix of talents and abilities. As people of faith, we are confident that God always goes ahead of us, and the same is true in this case. God is already at work to prepare and call the next vitally important team member and leader of the Caldwell family.

So, stay tuned and watch for the dates for the town halls, which will be in the next few weeks. Let the conversation begin!

Yes, another intern!

Like manna to the Israelites, God continues to provide Caldwell with interns in ministry.

On June 3, Caldwell welcomes its second college intern. Tianna Butler, a rising senior at Davidson College, will spend 8 weeks with us through a program called The Ministry Fellowship.

Bilingual preschool enters new leadership chapter

The longtime director is gone but the school has opportunities for growth ahead

The Charlotte Bilingual Preschool housed in our Price Building is looking for a new leader but the school is moving ahead on several fronts.

Barbara Cantisano directed the preschool for 12 years, and will pursue a second undergraduate degree that may well serve her in the future to serve the Latino community.

The search is on for a new director. Caldwell member Ann Alford, a former board member and current active volunteer, has stepped in as interim executive direction while the board conducts a search.

Potential for more resources

Ann writes there is “good news! The Central Ave. site of the school has received licensing from the State of North Carolina! Licensing offers new opportunities for grants and additional access to funding sources that will translate to additional resources to expansion to serve more children and their families. Currently, there are 300-plus children on the school’s waiting list.”

That list will shrink on June 22 when 29 preschoolers graduate. “All of our students have improved their English language and social skills as well as cognitive skills,” says Ann. “Their parents have attended parenting and ESL classes (English As A Second Language) and accompanied their children on field trips to Wing Haven, Bechler Museum of Modern Art, Imaginon and Discovery Place.”

The school year was enhanced by a group of volunteers: Alex and Ann Smythers, Carole Outwater, Judy Atwell, Joyce Deaton, Marilyn Rowland, Kitty and Tom Bohr, Zach and Sally Thomas, Fred Powers and Carol King.

Preschoolers practice their artwork. The school will hold a graduation for 29 students - and their proud parents and relatives - on June 22.

Immigration, the Bible, our neighbors

As a community of faith, we are called to witness a level of radical hospitality that recognizes the inherent worth and dignity of all persons. What does our Christian tradition have to say about extending that hospitality to immigrants and foreigners in our own lives as well as in our church? Beginning Sunday, June 3 at 6 p.m. we will explore that question together in a four-part study of the Bible and how it addresses the issue of modern day immigration.

Becoming the Church Together: Immigration, the Bible, and Our New Neighbors features interactive and conversational sessions that will investigate how faith in Christ affects views on immigration and help us apply the truth to how we treat our new neighbors. Each lesson focuses on Scripture, while incorporating prayer, activities, videos, and group discussion.

Join us on the Sunday evenings of June 3, 10, 17, and 24 in the Shelby Room for this important and thought-provoking study from the North Carolina Council of Churches. We'll begin at 6 p.m. each week and end around 7:30, depending on how lively the discussion gets. The Latino Ministry Committee will provide a light meal for everyone the first night. Don't worry if you can't make every session - we will value your participation whenever you are there.

The Bilingual Preschool is already a valued and very welcome part of Caldwell's beloved community. Also on June 3, we will celebrate our relationship with the school's parents, teachers, children, and leaders in a Bilingual Worship Service that morning. Highlighted by joyous music, special moments, and shared fellowship, it is a wonderful opportunity for us to come together with our neighbors.

Weaving our stories in the fabric of faith

Women's retreat combines inspiration, recreation and worship

Twenty-five Caldwell women gathered at Montreat's Lookout Lodge in April, our fifth annual retreat since our church's rebirth.

We introduced ourselves by creating shapes that symbolized the presence God in our lives. There were suns and moons, trees and several mountains. A butterfly, a dolphin, a bird and a couple of hearts. A triangle representing the triune God. Flames and an arrow, a spiral and many more – all of which would provide the template for the weekend's creative endeavor.

Saturday morning Liz Chandler led us as we read and reread the second chapter of Acts and the story of the Pentecost, sharing in small groups the details that most closely caught our attention. The Ecclesiastical Players, those bravest among us, cleverly reenacted Acts 8, the story of Phillip in Samaria and the baptism of the Ethiopian eunuch, and Acts 10, the story of Peter, Cornelius and the dream of unclean animals. Improvised and inspiring, masculine characters became feminine – after all, this was a women's retreat – laughter abounded. In conclusion, we explored how the apostles were hindered from completing the Spirit's direction and how these limitations were breached or overcome.

Recreational activities comprised the remainder of the weekend. Some hiked Lookout, some explored the shops at Lake Susan and in Black Mountain. Others napped. We all ate. And throughout the weekend, we hovered over two looms – our individual shapes joining together and weaving our tapestries of faith.

Veronica Rogers led Sunday morning worship with a sermon entitled "Is the Tapestry of Faith in Our Wardrobes?" She advised that we get rid of the clutter and embrace the Holy Spirit, reminding us that, like our weaving, God isn't finished with us yet.

Adult education forum: the Christian Nurture

Liz Wagner

On a recent Sunday, 28 bold and fearless members of Caldwell Presbyterian met for a forum to discuss possibilities for adult education and spiritual formation at Caldwell.

Those attending the forum expressed deep commitment to what the Book of Order calls “Christian Nurture”. The goals of Christian Nurture include welcoming members into the community; equipping them for participation in worship and helping them live as disciples of Jesus Christ in a beautiful but broken world. Caldwell currently offers a variety of opportunities for Christian Nurture:

- Session and Committees – not only coordinate the mission of the church but also provide members an opportunity to deepen their relationships in faith.
- Women’s Circle – meets monthly for fellowship and study using the denomination study guide.
- Book Club – meets monthly at members’ homes to discuss the current selection from a group generated list of diverse literary topics.
- Adult Sunday School Class – meets weekly before worship to study biblically based topics recommended by members.
- Retreats – both genders annually hold a weekend retreat off campus to participate in Bible study, form new friendships and strengthen existing ones.
- Caldwell Women – meets monthly to discuss spiritual practices and maintain relationships developed at the annual retreat.
- Justice Forums – offered sporadically to increase the congregations’ awareness of and provide insight on a faithful response to community justice issues.

Forum attendee’s acknowledged these offerings and displayed an interest in developing other nurturing opportunities for those members who are not currently participating. A variety of schedules were proposed including a reintroduction of the Four-by-Four program. The Education Committee will evaluate the recommendations and formalize a schedule soon.

Please know that a Newcomers Class began Sunday, May 13. It’s a class for anyone who has come to Caldwell in the last year or so and anyone else who is interested in a refresher on what it means to be Presbyterian, in a campus tour, in hearing about how the session and our ministries are organized, and more. The class meets at 9:45 a.m. sharp in the Fellowship Hall.

Also, mark your calendars for the four Sunday evenings in June when we will explore the issues surrounding immigration, Biblical, political and personal. The sessions will follow a curriculum developed by the North Carolina Council of Churches and be held on the church campus. Other details will be forthcoming.

Adult Sunday School: ‘Everyone brings something to the table’

Felicia Bell has seen - and heard - something she likes in the weeks she has attended Caldwell’s Sunday morning Adult Sunday School.

“I enjoy the openness, and I like the input from everyone,” says Felicia. “Everyone brings something to the table.” In this particular class, the study was drawn from Matthew.

She sees something beyond merely attending the 9:45 Sunday morning class. “There’s just a multiplicity of gifts brought by everyone. Everyone brings their intellect, their life experiences, and their education.”

Felicia Bell (top) shares her view at a recent Sunday school class. “I like the input from everyone,” she says.*

Adult Sunday School classes are open to all and cover a wide variety of topics selected by the class.

Classes meet on Sunday morning at 9:45 in the Shelby Room just east of the sanctuary.

And, you are welcome to bring your morning coffee or tea.

The Easter season just

The Easter season doesn't end with Easter Sunday. In fact, far from it.

The Easter season consists of seven Sundays and actually extends another 50 days after Easter Sunday. This period is called Easter-tide.

Caldwell Good News! asked members and guests for their reflections of this most significant period for Christians.

To me it means new life. And because there's pink and sunshine, and it's happy and joyful.

Lisa Peeler

It's the glory, to me, of all that Jesus stands for. He came from a dark place and broke through with the light of love, and he cast that on all of us.

Lee Williams

Easter is everything we're about as Christians, and it's a reminder we have a new life in Christ.

Nancy Pugh

Easter to me is a time of reflection, time of renewal and a whole new beginning of spring.

Joanne Montgomery

A new beginning.

Jelani Davis

now drawing to a close

It means rebirth and recommitment and the hope of a glorious resurrection.

Bill Hicks

I like to see all the kids running around at the Easter egg hunt. That's my favorite part of Easter.

Clarrissia Lightner

It means the rebirth on a lot of levels, from my childhood with the flowers that bloom right around then, and how that goes together with the rebirth of Christ.

Don Cowen

To me, it really means tradition. I was raised Catholic, I remember Good Friday at my grandmother's, and it was so magical and deep rooted.

Jean Patterson

It means the resurrection of Christ and a time where it makes me feel like you can get a new beginning and you have a chance to cleanse your soul.

Felicia Godwin

Easter means a beginning, renewal and a commitment of faith.

Anne Hoffman

Sprucing up the grounds

April showers make May flowers in Caldwell's rejuvenated flower plots

Caldwell's grounds on 5th Avenue are a bit more tidied up, thanks to Dee Rogers and Gino Harris.

The pair spent a recent Saturday morning improving flower beds and spreading mulch.

As she hoed and weeded an area around a church sign before dirtying her hands planting perennials Sweet William, Wandering Jew and Lantana, Dee said she "likes to plant and I like to make things look good, and I like to spruce things up, too."

In between shoveling untold pounds of mulch donated to the effort, Gino said "It made me feel good to volunteer for the church because the church has been so good to me."

Dee knows how to use the business end of a hoe and Gino hefts many pounds of donated mulch around shrubs and other plants.

Zach Thomas wrote and sang a bilingual song for bilingual school children. Children danced on their feet first, then on their feet and knees, and then added hands, elbows and tummies. Each time, they learned they looked like a duck, a bear, a squirrel and a snake. When they turned on their backs, they discovered they could not dance at all. That's because (surprise!) cucarachas (cockroaches) can't dance. The kids screamed aloud. What fun! "I realized how fortunate these children are to grow up in the U.S. which is fast becoming a culture of both Spanish and English speakers. We are bound to be made a more hospitable nation by such children -- surely, "Regalos del Señor," said Zach.

Join Caldwell's trip to Atlanta this summer!

Want to be a part of a group of Caldwellians who travel to Atlanta for a few days this July to serve with a ministry and a community that truly lives the mission of radical hospitality?

Caldwell plans to send a small group of members and friends (up to 10 people) to Atlanta on Sunday, July 1 to stay at and serve alongside the members of The Open Door Community.

The Open Door Community is an intentional residential community who, in their words, "seek to dismantle racism, sexism and heterosexism, abolish the death penalty, and proclaim the Beloved Community through loving relationships with some of the most neglected and outcast of God's children: the homeless and our sisters and brothers who are in prison."

There is no cost for this trip, just your time and your willingness to serve and to learn. The length of stay is flexible, from 4-6 nights, and we can decide once the group forms. While we are in Atlanta we will live in community with the residents of this intentional community, worship with them, and serve alongside them in their ministries to the homeless. This includes preparing meals for and serving in the soup-kitchen, and assisting at the medical clinic, foot care clinic, and free clothing closet. We will also help plan an Independence Day picnic & celebration for the community and homeless neighbors. If we stay all week, we can also spend time at the Community's farm a few hours outside of Atlanta. Please join us!

To learn more about this trip please contact Carol Williams or Susan Pierson (susanmpierson@gmail.com).

We have had visitors in our midst

Right: Carl Bumford, a former minister at Caldwell, feels "Christ is moving in this church again. The energy is just overwhelming. It is great to see so many in attendance. God is moving in your presence."

Tianna was born in Salisbury, MD, but has lived in Mobile, AL, Shreveport, LA, and Huntersville, NC for 10 years before finally returning home to Salisbury in 2005. She describes her faith background as "born Catholic, but attend both Wesleyan and Baptist churches now." She is an English Major and Theatre Minor at Davidson.

Tianna expressed an interest in urban ministry to Davidson Chaplain Rob Spach and Rob directed her to Caldwell. She will work approximately 30 hours a week, exploring all aspects of ministry at Caldwell. She succeeds a college intern who served at Caldwell several years ago. Seminary Intern Liz Wagner will be with us through July and another seminary intern will follow her, arriving in September.

Please give Tianna a warm welcome – and invite her to lunch or dinner!

Caldwell's step-by-step approach has moved from temporary overnight shelter seven nights a week to additions of a Wellness evening, and Sunday Sabbath, when our Caldwell House neighbors are fed - physically and spiritually - and stay in their quarters (the only day of the week when this is possible).

Plenty of volunteer opportunities

Although the Salvation Army had an existing pool of volunteer instructors who were immediately available (classes have already started), Pastor Cleghorn says Caldwell members and visitors will have plenty of opportunities to help. "One important point is that there are plenty of opportunities for Caldwell folks to dive in and help."

Among the first classes for women was to set goals for themselves..

Among the exercises: write out your goals on a large sheet of paper.

The goals for this woman were clear:

1. Get a job
2. Not be so mad (control temper)
3. Get a job
4. Be a better person
5. Get a job

God's Timing

*God times the faintest heartbeat
The falling of a tear
The color changing autumn
The passing of each year.*

*God has time at His disposal
He's the author of each breath
He sees all of life before Him
From man's birth until his death.*

*Yet He watches as I falter
While I struggle in His will
He is patient, ever present
And His love surrounds me still.*

*He upholds me in His power
Quietly draws me back again
I come stumbling, sadly shaken
What a gracious, loving friend.*

Caldwell's Mission Statement

In the Summer of 2007, Congregational Dialogues formed the foundation of our church's renewed mission statement as adopted by action of the Session that Fall:

- We seek to build a diverse, intentional, affirming community animated by joyful worship and called forth into social action for service to the greater good.
- We seek to hear God's call not only as individuals but also as a progressive, missional community striving to reflect the Kingdom of God in the here and now.
- We embrace the rich history of the Reformed Tradition and the storied past of our once-prominent, center-city church, as we welcome a diverse, urban community of seekers—young and old, gay and straight, rich and poor, of all races and ethnicities.
- We are called into a meaningful, transformative community that values the unique blessings and perspectives of each member and offers a place of welcome and healing to weary souls.
- We seek dynamic servant leaders who serve humbly, embrace change, and boldly challenge injustices in the wider community.
- Most importantly, we seek to proclaim the Gospel in both word and deed, following the life and teachings of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior.

God Invites. We Welcome. All.
